Agreement May Clean Up Existing Differences In Mediterranean, Near East

LONDON, Nov. 3 — The House of Commons adjourned today into a debate on whether the Labor party's charges that alarming deficiencies existed in the British defensive plan in the Anglo-Italian agreement was ready to go into effect.

The agreement was signed last April 18, approved by the house May 2 but left unsigned until Dec. 1. Minister Chamberlain could tell the house yesterday the Spanish civil war was no longer a "menace to Europe."

Then by vote of 345 to 138 — with a small group of Conservatives abstaining — the house gave approval to the government's proposal to put the agreement into effect almost immediately. It was believed Nov. 2 that the intention was to have it in force by Dec. 1.

A lengthy debate, designed to clear up existing differences in the Mediterranean and near east from Spain to Ethiopia, the pact would end.

1 — Withdrawal of all Italian fighters and war planes from Spain and the rest of the civil war if evacuation is not completed earlier.

2 — Britain to work through the League of Nations toward recognition of Italy's conquest of Ethiopia. (This has already been done.) The League, however, will remain member free to decide the question for itself.)

3 — Italy recognized Britain as the holder of all political rights in Spain and sought no privilege economic position there.

4 — Free use of the Suez canal at all times for all powers was reaffirmed.

5 — Both countries agreed not to use propaganda against each other.

6 — The Anglo-Italian alliance of January, 1937, was reaffirmed.

7 — Italy abandoned all claims to influence in Arabian territories.

LOW INTEREST FARMER LOANS ARE PROPOSED

Aid To Agriculturalists In Paying Off Debts Advo- cated By Whiteley

ATHABASCA, Nov. 3 — Loan guarantees to help agriculturalists to farmers to cover their debts was advocated here Wednesday night by C. J. Rayner Whiteley, Liberal candidate in the Athabasca provincial by-election.

He said that such a policy would encourage "farmers to farm" and farmers there are reported to be obtaining loans at 5 per cent.

Total indebtedness of the 2,240 families in the district who have formulated proposals was $19,675,171. This has been slashed by $7,609,139 since the formation of the board in 1934.

The average size of the applicances was $5,600 and the average reduction effected in principal by the board was $3,387, while the average yearly saving in interest is $1,000. Mr. Whiteley was speaking at a public meeting at Spruce Lake school. Other speakers who supported him were Dr. W. M. Lla, Calgary, former Liberal house leader; Dr. W. Morris, M.L.A., Edmonton, and Dr. Marc Bowles, Lethbridge, for Social Credit supporters' organization in Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

Need of having a pegged price for the farmer's crop "to guarantee him the cost of threshing, cleaning, storing and marketing his excesses" was endorsed by the Liberal candidate.

Mr. Whiteley charged that "on the eve of the election the provincial government is trying to bribe the people in this constituency with more than $100,000 to support the people of the province with promises before the 1935 general election."

The Nationalists charged that "on the eve of the election the provincial government is trying to bribe the people in this constituency with more than $100,000 to support the people of the province with promises before the 1935 general election."

He said that districts where "not a dollar had been spent on road work for three years" were now being asked to contribute $25,000 out of the pocket of the Alberta farmer by the present government.

Mr. Whiteley said he had found a wrecker's income inadequate around here which would cause her to leave the province and return to the west coast.

"This is the first time we've been asked to leave our marriage a year ago," she said. "I just can't stand it."

Hospitalization Of War Veterans May Be Broadened

OTTAWA, Nov. 3 — Broadened hospitalization of war veterans is under consideration by the government, it was learned yesterday. It is likely legislation will be introduced into parliament next session to that end.

The proposed measure will cover indigent ex-service men only, who, having served in a theatre of actual combat, will be entitled to hospitalization at the annual meeting here today.

One, M. Allen of Neville, however, immediately resigned in order to permit proportionate representation on the board of directors of the United Canadian Growers' Association, the annual meeting here today.

Hitler Political Control of Eastern Europe Seen in Trade Pacts

YUGOSLAVIA IS LATEST NATION TO JOIN NAZIS

Fuehrer's Economic Moves Considered Drive To Increase Power

By BRUNNIE MACKENZIE

Associated Press Staff
BRIGADE, Yugoslavia, Nov. 3.—Chancellor Hitler's campaign for economic domination of Eastern Europe has met with opposition since he forced France and Great Britain to acquire in 1936 the port of Toulon in Yugoslavia. It is one of the most amazing coups of its kind in history.

One purpose of driving each nation to the east is to corner the vast agricultural and natural wealth of this region to make the new and larger Nazi empire which Hitler has contained, especially as regards the affairs of war. At the same time a fuel-prod market is being provided for the Nazi goods he has talked with diplomats, officials and others in a number of countries affected, and they profess to see difficulties far ahead. They say they are unable to dissociate economic control from ultimate political control.

IMPORTANT KINGDOM

The latest country to agree to Hitler's sweeping economic policies is Yugoslavia. This important Balkan kingdom has had a new trade agreement made where the bulk of her products go to Germany, chiefly on the barter system.

True, Yugoslavia and neighboring countries already had been depending largely on Germany to obtain their supplies, which is chiefly agricultural. Heretofore, however, there hasn't been the political aspect which has existed since the Nazis took over Austria and Sudetenland.

Yugoslavia has signed with the anxious prayer that there will be no political changes in the world which endanger her freedom. She wants to be left in peace, though her determination to maintain the preservation of her liberty will be doubted by those who remember how Hitler, like a tiger, from his Yalta lair, pounced David to slay Austria's Goliath in the Great War. This is a land of fighting men and one which most foreign countries would be inclined to handle with care.

COULD APPLY SQUEEZE

If, as they fear, there may be danger or trouble in other countries in the Hitler orbit, Hitler is in his ability to apply an economic squeeze to any country which is not in his orbit. He could bankrupt any one of the countries dependent on him for a market by cutting off its German market.

menting the Adriatic and projecting into the triangle formed by the junction of Italy and Austria just above Trieste.

This country is bound to figure prominently in the picture if Hitler does what many statements he is making indicate. It is bound to form part of an Adriatic port from Mussolini. They say it will be Trieste, which the Nazi leaders have decided is more or less dead as a shipping centre.

WAGNER LABOR ACT IMPORTANT ISSUE IN U.S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Inistent demands for alteration of the Wagner Labor Act to make its operation less "one-sided" were renewed last night despite the National Labor Board's flat opposition to change.

Headed by Chairman J. Warren Madden, the board voted to keep the Wagner act as it is, but the question expected to be one of the hottest issues of the next United States session of Congress was left to his colleagues, Edwin S. Smith and Donald Wakefield Smith, to decide.

Both the administration and the National Labor Relations Board think it imperative that the act needs amendment.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt, of the American Federation of Labor, one of the strongest advocates of revision, which would curtail the board's powers, said:

"House and Senate administration by the National Labor Relations Board we think it imperative that the act be amended."

Empire Maintenance Debated At Toronto

TORONTO, Nov. 3.—By a vote of 78 to 17, students at the University of Toronto debate last night defeated the motion that Canada and the British Empire is a barrier to progress after hearing it discussed by Australian and Canadian students.

Hans H. Klemm, University College student from Medicine Hat, Alta., and Fred Thomsen, student from Victoria, B.C., of Melbourne, spoke for the affirmative and Hugh Johnson, graduate of the University of Toronto, and David Owen of Trinity College, Toronto, led the negative.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The United States may step up the pace of its expansion program to meet the growing naval power of Japan and Germany, announcing it would resume experiments with dirigibles of representatives of all parties.

GOVERNMENT WINS QUEBEC BY-ELECTIONS

Union National Boosts Strength By Adding St. Louis Seat

MONTRÉAL, Nov. 3.—Quebec's Union Nationale government maintained its majority in the provincial legislative assembly yesterday when the Liberals and held the Stanstead County seat against a Liberal who had been returned by 61 votes in the previous Dr. F. C. C. Magog in Stanstead, both on the basis of unconditional tabulations.

Louis Fournier, who carried the Metropolitan riding by a scant 60 votes over Raoul Tremblay, Liberal leader candidate, was elected to the House of Commons with official Liberal support; and Henri Gerin, lawyer from Côte-du-Sud, was returned by 61 votes over Dr. F. C. C. Magog in Stanstead, both on the basis of unconditional tabulations.

MAY ASK RECOUNT

The vote from the 47 polls in St. Louis was 1,539 for Fournier and 1,490 for Tremblay.

74 GOVERNMENT SEATS

The double win swelled the Union Nationale's strength in the legislature to 54 seats. The Liberals have 11, with the other five in the 90-seat house. The Conservative party group formed last year by dissident government members.

With the recent victories given the Union Nationale Party a clean sweep in the five by-elections it has had since the general election held in June, its only victories were in Beauport, Bagot and Chicoutimi. As in St. Louis, the administration gained the Bagot seat from the Liberals.

can see one substantial gain: that the people of Europe have shown themselves unbreakable, even perhaps unconquerable, when faced by stages? The first of these might be the fuller and more frequent cooperation between the government and the leaders of the other parties, and the second, the possibility of some examination and discussion of the views held by each.

In the light of this reflection, is it not the future that we must turn our minds to? What can be done to meet the situation? We are much further into it. Whichever view is taken, there is a strong case for the greater co-operation of national efforts should be made to ensure that England is never placed in a position again.

On the other hand, if the situation is really untenable, and there is also a very real willingness among large sections of the population to do anything in their power to increase the sense of national security, this is not the time to express a desire to do so.

NATIONAL SERVICE NEEDED

Many also hold the conviction that there should be some organization of the armed forces, some means of a form of national service, or other organization, which would be able to meet the emergency of a future crisis that might arise in a much better organized and more effective manner.

To achieve these results, some measure of sacrifice from everyone will be required. In the past we have been unwilling to face that sacrifice, if the reality of the need is made plain to them.

Again, there are many who feel that a national duty at this time is to reduce the party differences to a minimum, and are convinced that if the democracies are to survive, they must be willing to make an enthusiasm comparable with that which former forms of government have inspired.

FOREIGN POLICY AND DEFENCE

The two subjects which today are foremost in the English public mind are foreign policy and defence. What could clearly be an institutionalized English ability to achieve some measure of agreement on these two issues?

The difficulties are obvious and formidable, but I believe, that if the English people are to be made, however reluctantly, to some may regard the chances of success, differences of emphasis, and then even cut across the party lines.

Against this one must weigh the increasing gulf between the nation that has been so long at peace and a sense of greater confidence which such unity would create, also a sense of British seriousness of purpose.

At home the country can take part in the now almost complete parliamentary controversy which surrounds the foreign policy of the government.

This is equally true as regards the British trade position, although the party differences are not so great as in the case of foreign policy.

When we turn to the practical means of achieving this unity on foreign policy, it is clear that in the world conditions all the English home problems are as intimately connected, it is clear that the main direction of policy must be to maintain a disturbance of the daily civil routine and hoping always that the ex-

Nursing Home Operator Admits Not Married to Man in Conspiracy Case

VANCOUVER, Nov. 3.—The woman charged as Mrs. Andrew Goulding's accomplice to steal from 82-year-old Eva F. Huntington who had been last month admitted she was not the wife of Andrew Goulding, charged jointly with her.

» Who is your husband, Mrs. Goulding? Crown Counsel Angelo Brancato asked in cross-examination of Mrs. Huntington, who was serving as a nurse in the nursing home where Mrs. Huntington died.

"Did you ever live with Andrew Goulding as husband and wife?"

"No, I did not," she said.

As one prosecutor asked in cross-examination Mrs. Goulding burst into tears.

She was broken and shaken from a long, detailed questioning by Crown Prosecutor A. E. Brancato that had been aimed at getting to the bottom of her relationship with Mrs. Goulding broke down under repeated requests of court officials to speak more loudly.

» Did you ever live with Andrew Goulding as husband and wife?"

"I did not," she replied. "I was married to a man named Mr. John Collins." And on the subject of the inauguration of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Several circumstances combine to raise attention to the Roosevelt administration's handling of the new mandate for his policies in the off-year election and congressional elections.

Among them, these seem outstanding:

NOT NORMAL YEAR

Cabinet officers and other administration spokesmen are emphasizing that it is not a normal year, with the contention this is not a normal off-year election but a normal year.

The assumption is growing in the President's own judgment with his acceptance speech in 1933 of the inauguration of 1933 and 1937.

She was also questioned about the substitution of a cheap wedding ring for the diamond ring she wore after the woman died in the nursing home last May, and how the woman had managed to make over her will.

Mr. Goulding had been ill for days after she came to know her.

Mr. Goulding began weeping when he was asked if he had been re-questioning her on the purchase of a $350 automobile with the money he had received from the woman.

SAILING CUP

TO BE SHIPPED HOME STATELY

HALIFAX, Nov. 3.—Capt. Angus Walters, skipper of the champion schooner Bluenose, arrived in Halifax from Boston by air yesterday but he left before the sailing cup competition to attend the International Fishermen's races.

On the way he had been unwilling to leave the ship because of the bad weather.

On the return trip he had to wait for a new deal next Tuesday.

He was going to buy it and pay for it myself," he replied.

The middle-aged matron has defended the charges against her and offered to pay the fine imposed by the court.

She testified that Mrs. Huntington had been ill and had to leave the house after she came to know her.

Mr. Goulding began weeping when he was asked if he had been re-questioning her on the purchase of a $350 automobile with the money he had received from the woman.

A Free-For-All

With four candidates in the field for the mayoralty, thirteen contenders seeking election to five vacant aldermanic seats, and seven nominees for three vacancies on the public school board, Edmonton electors cannot complain that they will not have an opportunity to attest their party loyalty or to exercise personal preference on voting day. The school board required an election, a truce school board was all elected by acclamation, following a pretty well established custom. The elector who is a public school supporter will have a total of nine votes to cast, with twenty-four candidates among whom to choose.

So far as advance indications go, the contest does not promise to develop into a party "war" over a defined issue or set of issues. It is in fact rather an "off year" election, with no clear cut lines of cleavage on questions of outstanding importance. The discussions, it seems likely in these circumstances, will centre upon the record of this year's council, the position in which the city stands after a year under the Fortin debt-exchange plan, and how best the very limited amount of money which will be available to next year's council can be used.

With large issues wanting, the voter will be under less pressure than otherwise to vote for party candidates as such, and freer to exercise his preferences according to personal inclination or the known qualifications of individual nominees. Group "slates" will cut less figure in his calculations than when the lines are tightly drawn on a question of overshadowing interest.

A Close-Up

Thousands of radio listeners in the United States and Canada on Sunday got the "thrill" that people in Europe experienced a month ago, and under which millions of people in China have lived for more than a year. Fortunately the "invasion from Mars" was nothing worse than a "show" put on by ingenious broadcasters with dramatic fidelity. But there was no make-believe in the reaction on the minds and nerves of the fans, the frenzied calls to newspaper offices for confirmation, the hurried preparations for flight—whatever?

If the hoax was cruel, the victims now know something of what it "feels like" to live in a country that is invaded—not by monsters from another planet but by bombers from some other part of this one. Nothing the broadcasters pretended had happened was worse—or could possibly be worse—than what has been happening in Shanghai and Hankow and Canton and Spain—and threatened to happen in London, Paris and Berlin. The shocked listeners can now read the despatches from those areas with a clearer sense of what the words could possibly mean.

And it could happen "here" meaning any city or earth important enough to warrant the cost of an attack. With predators nations on the march, led by men drunk with power and "glory" there is scarcely a town of any size in any country that can consider itself too remote to be reached by the winged hawks. Security now means defense planes and tanks and guns and warships; the money to build these and the men to man them.

The Self-Sufficiency Fraud

In a speech on Tuesday, Mr. Cordell Hull scored a point for trade expansion policies when he said the very countries which proclaim self-sufficiency to be their aim are at the same time "making desperate efforts to enlarge the volume of their foreign commerce." Germany's present drive for trade in south-eastern Europe and Turkey illustrates the fact.

So does the wrecking of Czechoslovakia, undertaken as it may be to widen markets for German goods as to right the largely imaginary wrongs of the Sudeten. In Abyssinia the motive was more to secure raw materials that to acquire markets, but the raw materials will be useful only if Italy's industries can find customers for their products abroad. And in China the Japanese are openly avowing the major hope to find new markets and markets for Japanese goods among the millions of the occupied territory.

Yet Germany, Italy and Japan are all self-sufficiency countries, using tariffs, trade control, exchange manipulation and all other discoverable devices to free them from dependence upon other countries for essential supplies. To sell the maximum abroad while buying nothing abroad that can possibly be produced at home is the sum and substance of their economic policies. And in part because the program does not work well, they are employing force to translate independent states into dependencies from which foreign imports can be barred.

No country boasting the self-sufficiency ideal ever dared put this idea to the test by banging its doors, declaring itself a closed area, and trying to live up to itself. The regret is that the governments which reject that idea are less active in promoting international trade by the methods of peace than are the others in using war and the threat of war to force their goods into new territory.

Editorial Notes

If more books like Sir Robert Borden's memoirs were written, the true stature of Canada's leaders would be better appreciated. The little criticisms of little men, the prattle about the incompetency of parliament, and the foolish charge that all politicians are devoid of scruple and honor, would be exposed for what they are—the voices of ignorance, prejudice or slander.

Major H. G. L. Strange, who knows his wheat, estimates that western farmers have $30,000,000 worth more grain to sell than they would have if research workers had not developed a rust-resistant wheat. And $30,000,000 is a lot of money in western Canada just now. The reasons accumulate why it should be easy to get parliament to vote money for research.

Farmers generally, and western farmers in particular, will welcome the announcement that the Massey-Harris Company are making a substantial reduction in the prices of tractors and other farm machinery, effective as from November 1st. This is stated to be due in part to a slight reduction in the prices of raw materials, but also made in anticipation rather than because of conditions already existing. The reduction is producing costs will be equivalent to a corresponding increase in the prices of grain to get the farmer, a particularly timely aid at present.

The chairman of the Agricultural Council of America, Dr. Eric T. Bell, has written a book called "Man and His Liberties." It is a depressing survey of the "libelous" that man has made through the ages of blind and narrow-mindedness of dogma. He calls it a "triumph through the Museum of Human Stupidity"; it might better be called a study in invincible faith. Since St. Augustine fifteen centuries ago wrote that man was created to sin, the neck, the rump, the braket, shirtripe, and round steaks. The chuck is used for pot roasts and stews and in addition it may be used as ground beef for making meat loaf and meat balls. The flank is used for roast beef and braising. The round is employed in making soups and stews. The neck is used both in steaming and in making meat loaf. Beef rump may be made into pot roasts and also used for braised steaks. Brisket is good for boiling but is not often used. Round steak is best prepared in the form of "Salisbury Steaks." Hamburger is another kind of inexpensive meat which may be used by those in good health. Ox-tail may also be included in this beef classification, being used in making stock.

Ved and Lamb. I consider the chief objection to veal and lamb is that they are immature meats and immature meats are more difficult to digest than matured meats. They are usually those in good health. They provide the following cuts: the shank which may be made into a stew or braised; the breast, which may be boned and rolled; and the shoulder, which is the most expensive cut, which may be braised or made into meat loaf.

The inexpensive cuts usually require careful cooking to make them tender and the two methods of roasting most often employed are steaming and braising.

I recommend the following cuts to the amateur who is interested in cooking the meat is slowly simmered for a long time. The secret in masking good stews is this slow cooking.

You will find that the addition of various herbs will make the meat more flavorful and better tasting and it would be a good plan to experiment a little with the herbs you like.

The British Government, with the emotional assent of the House of Commons and of millions of people, have been the accomplices, perhaps not the leaders, in a terrible reign of terror, the centrepiece of which is still not understood. Those who have foreseen it and foretold it, if certain things were done and other things were not done in time, can feel no satisfaction. Only mean persons can rejoice when they find themselves able to say with truth: "I told you so."

Only mean persons can rejoice when they find themselves able to say with truth: "I told you so."

Canada in Danger Losing Britain's Arms Support Through Gun Probe

OTTAWA FEARS INQUIRY WILL AFFECT TRADE

Dominion Needs British Money To Make Long Range Arms

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—There is considerable concern as to whether Britain will continue to assist Canada in any armament program due to the difficulty which has arisen over the gun contract. The Canadian government has asked the national defence department to tell the Canadian Press last night.

"Very grave anxiety is felt in Ottawa over the fact that we may continue to place arms orders in this country," the official said.

BRITAIN NEEDED

Britain's co-operation through the purchase of Canadian-made and British guns which would manufacture arms simultaneously for the Canadian government and Britain's own long-range arms program in the Nanchang front southeast of Hankow. General Chang placed the number of Japanese killed at 3,000.

FARM INDUSTRY EXPANSION BIG NEED OF WEST

Necessity Adequate Market Told Grain Growers At Meeting

CALGARY, Nov. 3.—Canadian farmers, making a real contribution to the welfare of the Dominion, should be allowed to develop their industry, the government possibly declared yesterday by McKenzie of Winnipeg, vice-president of the United Grain Growers Limited.

Three hundred delegates here for the annual meeting of the U.G.G. heard Mr. McKenzie speak of farm problems.

CITIES SHOULD HELP

Need for expansion of farmers' market was stressed by the vice-president. The Dominion government must adequately meet its obligation to assist the grain grower by protecting him from foreign competition.

"We will have to ask the city dweller to interest himself in the problem of marketing agricultural products."

"Sure, she's all right. But I'm not guaranteeing that you will be like a lamp just because I happen to come along."

Tait heard Rogers' voice come through the paneling of the door again, his face flushed with fear and anger. "Look here, you idiot! Stop bawling! What have you been thinking about? The song says it all!" And what new song did you write? You couldn't make a tune worth a cent! Mother Goose is right."

"They think I can, though. Well, I can. And what's more important, they believe I wrote 'The City Mouse'."

Rogers' voice was choked.

"I mean that I'm going to play the piano now in a few weeks."

And what's more important,

they believe I wrote 'The City Mouse'."

MAN'S BODY IS RECOVERED IN RIVER WATERS

Discovered To Be Adelard Cote, Of Legal—Found Near City Plant

Body of Adelard Cote, 47, French-Canadian, reported missing from Legal since October 28, was found floating in feet of water about 30 yards off the site of the new pump house at the city power plant at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Cote's body was identified Thursday morning by his cousin, D. F. P. Fenton, proprietor of the Legal hotel, who had first reported him missing. Fenton said he had lost all sense of memory. Funeral will be held at Legal, with Connolly and McKinley in charge of arrangements. The date has not yet been set.

No inquest will be held.

CANOEIST REPORTS

GOING upstream, 9441 101 Street, paddled through a narrow canyon, saw the man's body below his boat through the clear water, and thought it was a dead Halloween dummy, said the canoeist. "But then I looked again and saw it move," he said.

He paddled downstream to a nearby gravel dressing crew on a bridge, and told them of the发现的尸体.

Police were notified, and Constable "Tinie" Lytle, with the help of the Templeman, a fourth man, looped a rope around the man's body, drew him to the surface, and pulled him out on a sandy beach.

RETRIEVER

One of the earliest settlers of the west and a son in the First Rebellion, James Inkster, 82 years old, died Tuesday at his home at the age of 83 years.

Born in Manitoba April 10, 1853, he came to Alberta in 1883 with his father, Rev. Robert Inkster and two other ministers, accompanying a party of 15 Red River settlers with horses to the western posts. After a year they joined a party of North West Mounted Police, making their way for the first time to establish law and order in the west.

CLOTHING SEARCHED

They reached Calgary and several years later before Rev. Inkster and his family moved to Edmonton, he was a minister without having to wait until they met by chance on the campus of the University of Alberta. Plans are afoot to bring his remains to the university for reburial.

James and Mrs. Inkster returned to Alberta, making their home in Edmonton and later taking up a farm on the south side of the river. They were instrumental in King Edward Park district, during the Red rebellion of 1885. Mr. Inkster was a popular and sought messenger, and the body was taken to identify the body.

Edward C. Keitel

Acting Coroner Dr. F. A. Keitel reported yesterday that James Inkster, 82, died in his home at 101 Avenue, Rev. THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Many universities have a "date bureau," where lonely students may apply for partners to accompany them on anything from a walk in the library to "going w/o" in some romantic manner. Plans are about to make a date bureau more popular as it has proved very successful. The Bulletin Inquiring Reporter has decided on the matter, the Herald.

LORNA CLARKE, Commerce student: The date bureau is a fine way to bring students who are not interested in social life together without having to wait until they meet by chance on the campus of the University of Alberta. Information on the client's card in the bureau files, however, there is no photo, a photograph, and a natural, not too retouched—picture that.

BRUCE KEITH, clerk: In my opinion, the date bureau here will be a failure. The University of Alberta is too small to allow each student, if he gets around a little, to meet many people. It is not until the end of the first term. For large universities like Columbia and others, fine, but for Alberta, no.

GREGORY M. MORRIS, teacher: I think the date bureau is a fine idea, and will offer a means of bringing together students who are not interested in social life.
